

JACKSON COUNTY SENTINEL

VOL. 23, No. 39

GAINESBORO, TENN., THURSDAY, SEPT. 15, 1921

$1.50 A YEAR

TENNESSEE ASKED TO FURNISH QUOTA OF GRAIN FOR STARVING CHILDREN OF NEAR EAST.

Nashville, Tenn., September 12th—The Near East Relief fall campaign of grain in Tennessee has received the stamp of official approval, Governor A. A. Taylor having written a letter to John H. Earley, official director of the campaign in Tennessee, indorsing the movement, which calls for a quota from this State of 50 carloads of 1000 bushels each of corn and 7 carloads of 1000 bushels each of wheat, to be donated for use in the Near East among the starving thousands of men, women and children.

Governor Taylor's letter to Mr. Earley follows:

"Mr. John H. Earley, Director Near East Relief, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dear Sir: I will be glad to serve as an honorary member of the State Agricultural Advisory Committee of the Near East Relief, and take this opportunity to give my hearty indorsement to the movement to raise a contribution of grain in Tennessee for the relief of the starving people of the Near East.

"According to prevailing prices of farm products, the farmers of Tennessee will realize little profits from their crop yield this year, but I feel sure that from their surplus they will be glad to contribute the amount asked of the State for the purpose. The people of Tennessee have never failed to respond to a call of this kind for help, and I know you can depend on them to help.

"With best wishes for the success of your campaign, I am, Yours very truly,

"A. A. Taylor, Governor."

Other prominent Tennesseans indorsing and aiding in the movement include Capt. T. F. Peck, Commissioner of Agriculture, Prof. J. B. Brown, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Dr. J. W. Bachman of Chattanooga; Newton C. Myers of Greeneville; Hon. W. R. Miller of Ripley, Prof. K. C. Davis of Peabody College for Teachers, and others.

The work of the campaign is now getting well under way, with W. M. Howe as regional director for Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Headquarters for the State are in Chattanooga, 1202 Volunteer Building. Arrangements have been made to present the objects of the campaign, through displays and the distribution of literature, at the Tennessee State Fair, where Secretary J. W. Russwurm has agreed to give booth space. The feature of the booth at the State Fair will be an immense grain bag.

Each county in the State will be organized, and will be asked to furnish its quota of grain, based on an approximate estimate of its production for this year. As crop reports indicate a bountiful harvest, it is expected that there will be no difficulty in raising the quantity of grain desired. The quota will be so small that it will not work a hardship on any community.

INJURED CITIZENS OF THE STATE TO BE TRAINED FOR SOME TRADE BY GOVERNMENT.

The Federal government, in co-operation with the State of Tennessee, has provided a fund of $44,000 for the present year for the training of disabled citizens of Tennessee. Both men and women, who are sixteen years old or over and who, on account of any accident or disease, have a physical disability that hinders the person from following a regular trade or vocation, are eligible to the benefits of this law. The rehabilitation fund can be used to pay for the tuition, books and tools for the person undergoing rehabilitation training. No part of this fund can be used to pay the board and lodging of the disabled person.

The injured persons will be trained in certain schools and in the shops and factories, industrial establishments and co-operations throughout the state. Whenever possible, the injured person will be given training in or near his home locality. The disability does not have to be received in the course of employment. A boy injured on a rabbit hunt; a girl disabled from an automobile collision; a woman injured in her home is entitled to the benefits of this training as is the one who is injured in a factory or on a railroad. Persons who are crippled as result of disease also are entitled to be trained under the provision of this law.

Hundreds of Tennesseans who are unsuited to follow certain trades or vocations on account of their physical disabilities can be trained for other trades or vocations which can be followed successfully. For example, a farmer who has lost one or both legs can be trained as a shoemaker, a printer, a saddler, a harness maker, a linotype operator, and a score of other positions; a young lady who has been disabled by infantile paralysis can be trained as a stenographer, file clerk, costume designer, bookkeeper and a number of other vocations. It should be remembered that a physically disabled person usually has left uninjured the greatest faculty of all, that is, the mind. When the mind is not disabled, the disabled person through proper training can be qualified to follow successfully a trade or a vocation that will be a means of self-support.

Those who read this article are requested to send the names and addresses of any disabled persons in their community, who appear to be in need of rehabilitation training, to the Director of Industrial Rehabilitation, Mr. Robt. H. White, State Capitol, Nashville, Tennessee.

Although the rehabilitation fund is limited, yet it is hoped that at least four or five disabled persons in every county in Tennessee can be given the benefits of rehabilitation training. With this fact in mind, the readers of this paper are urged to send to Mr. White the names and addresses of persons who are most seriously injured, such as a loss of a hand or leg, blindness, or those badly crippled from rheumatism, infantile paralysis, etc. Women as well as men, are entitled to all the benefits of the industrial rehabilitation program. No disabled person should hesitate to accept the benefits of this training. It is not in any sense charity, but a sane effort on the part of the State and the Federal government to render social justice to the injured and handicapped.
